A Statement Denied—Formal Invitations to the Execution Sent Out
Hand vern, N. H. May 13. The friends of the Nardeg family indignantly deny the statement that Miss Fannie Warden may witees the execution of Almy Speaking for herself, she says with emphasis "I shall not be present and she added," It ought not to be said that my brother Bert will go, for it is by no means certain that he will. Bert however wishes to see Almy hanged and states he thinks he and Charles Hewitt, who shot Almy in the bars will go to Concord together Tuesday merning. In reply to the suggestion that it would be a trying ordeal to any spectator to acceve so had a man us the brutal murderer of his sister stringled to death, he said, "Not so for me Why, I dike to be the executioner myself."

A recent lecture delivered before the portual students of the School of Domest e Science, Boston, by 1 rof George M. Whitt iker, of Worcester, Mass, contained much that was of general interest to those who have to do with the products of the company of the following substitute of the company of t USF I FOUS SARSAPARITIA who have to do with the products of the dairy. The following is the substance of his fecture.

Milk contains on in average about seven parts of water to one part solid matter, 13% of solids is recognized by law as the standard for milk. If it does not come up to the standard it is considered as adulter ated. The solids conist of fat, easing (the corrly part of milk), sugar and inheral matter. The sugar and fat form what is called the cirbonaceous or fuel foods, that is, those which, in undergoing combustion, furnish us with heat and with! force combustion, furnish us with feat and vital force (ascin is the mitrogenous food and helps to form blood, muscle and tresue. Skim milk cont uns all these thements but the fat, therefore, if we take milk for its nitrogenous matter the skim milk is just as good for our purpose, as the whole milk.

The easem is the strongest clement in this Cheese is made by the catiguitton of the curd of milk some kinds contain more or less fat.

The great number and variety of cheeses is supposed to be due to various kinds of bacteria which grow in the cheese in the process of ripcing. For this reason some durymen make a point of cultivating bacteria in order to obtain the desired kind of cheese. (An exhibit of this method of cultivating bacteria is to be given at Cheago this summer during the fair.)
